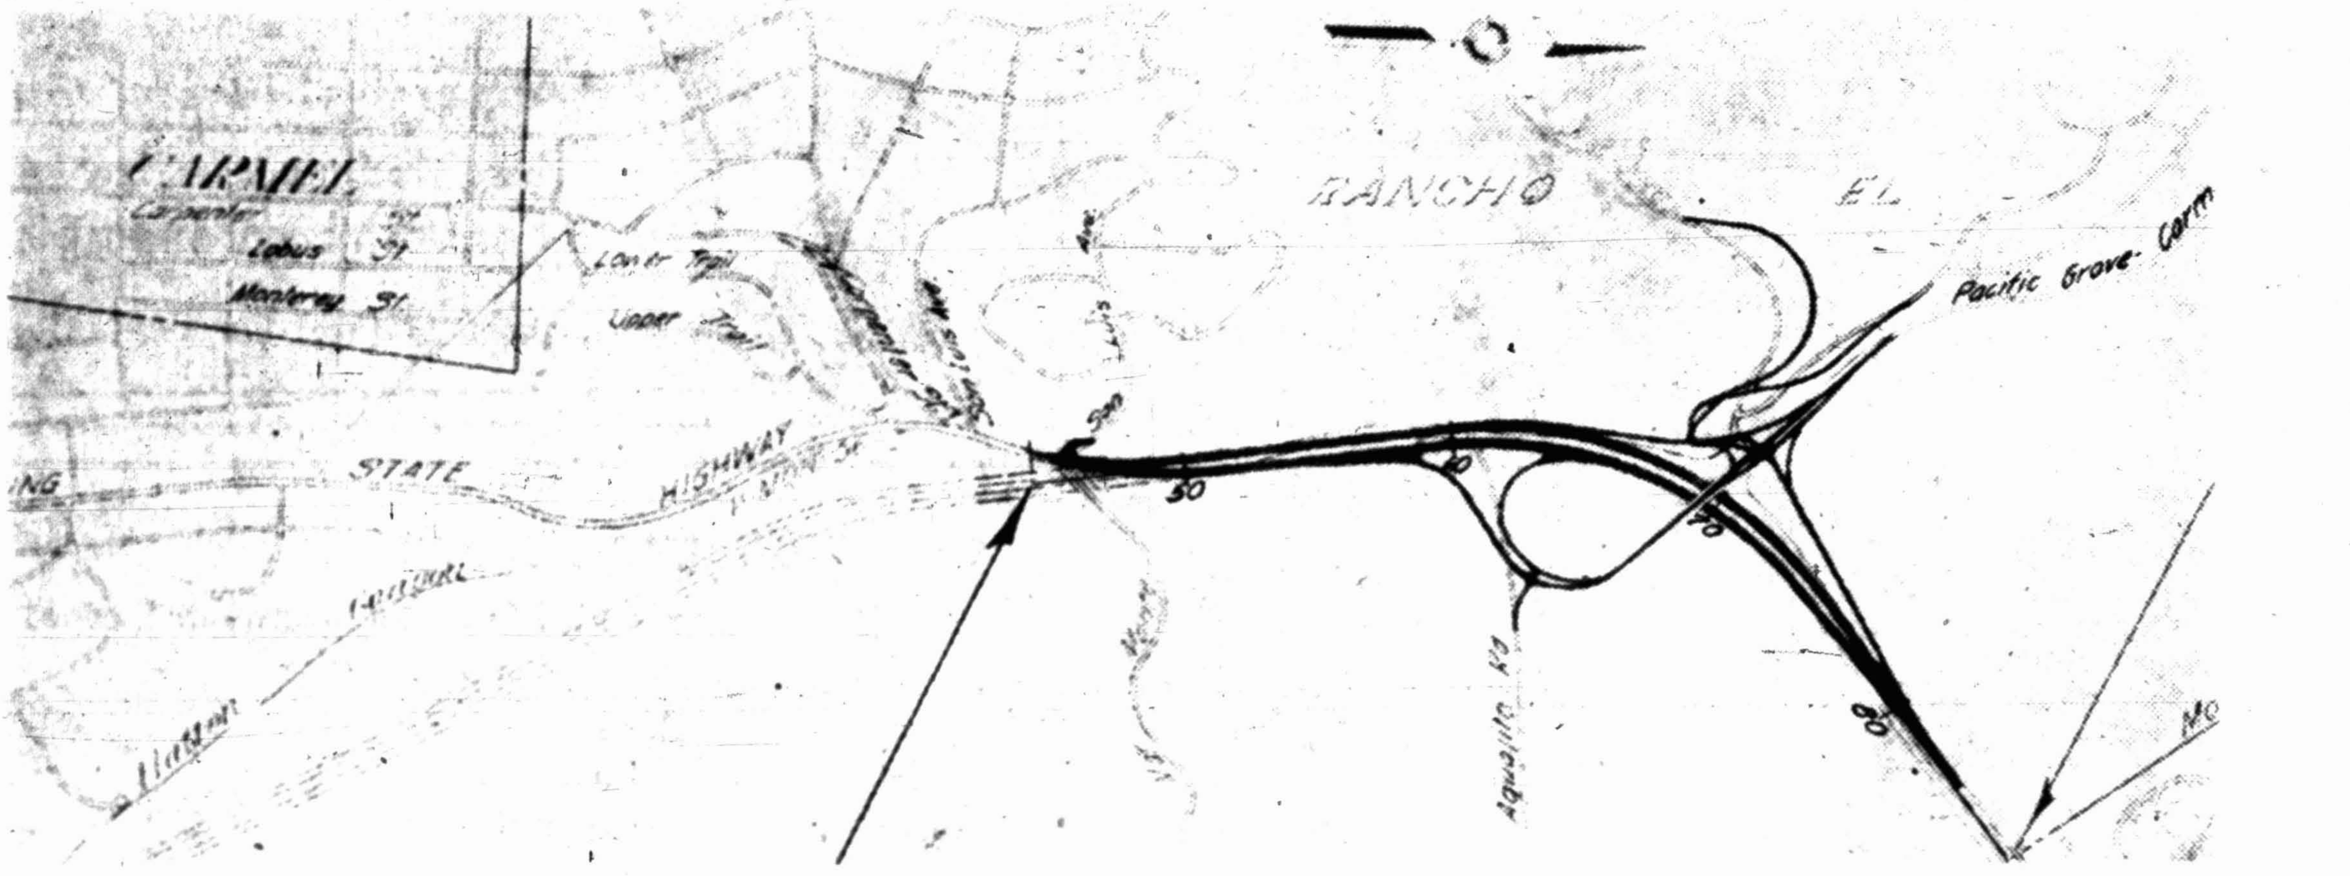
For Safety, Our Beautiful Carmel Hill Road Must Be Deeply Cut And Scarred?



Dr. Ralph E. Maxwell showed the California State Highway Division "unapproved plan" (left) for a two lane divided freeway and over-pass at the Pacific Grove turn-off at the top of the hill on the Monterey-Carmel Highway, Monday noon, to the directors of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce has been campaigning for some safety device, lights or overpass, at the hazardous Pacific Grove turnoff. Dr. Maxwell is chairman of the chamber's highway committee.

Going up Carmel Hill, traffic for Pacific Grove will turn to the right about 400 feet West of the Monterey City limits, as will traffic for the 17-Mile Drive. Traffic for Carmel and Route One will continue, following a new alignment, varying to the West at the Carmel Hill Gate, with end of the projected construction area at the First San Luis Avenue.

Traffic from Carmel for Pacific Grove will turn right on the feeder road at approximately Aguajito Road and precede on an over-pass to the Pacific Grove road.

Access to the freeway from the Pacific Grove Road is provided by the over-pass for Northbound traffic, and by the West-side feeder road for Southbound.

The plan, if officially approved, will necessitate major cuts, grading and fills and destruction of pine forest to lower the grade of the hill, provide a hundred feet additional road bed width for the two-lane divided freeway, and for construction of feeder roads and overpass.

"The co-operation of Dana Bowers, state highway department landscape engineer, can be counted on. Claude Faw, Member of the State Chamber of Commerce State Wide Highway Committee, told the Pine Cone. "He planted the pines on the Monterey Freeway as soon as the grading was done. It is no use pretending that there won't be ugly cuts and stripping, nobody is going to like it, but within two years the planting will mask the scars."

Planners And Citizens, Keith Evans Disagree On Little Lot Knolls

A preview of the Carmel Knolls subdivision zoning conflict set for the December 17 meeting of the County Planning Commission took place yesterday afternoon at the Carmel Planning Commission meeting. County Planning Commissioner Keith Evans startled the Carmel Commission, and representatives of Carmel Taxpayers Association, Rancho Rio Vista property owners, Carmel Valley Property Owners and Carmel Board of Realtors, all firm supporters of one acre minimum lot development at the mouth of Carmel Valley, when he announced, "There is no doubt but that two or three months ago the County Planning Commission recommended zoning of one-half acre minimum lots for land west of the Rancho Rio Vista property line."

Plans for Carmel Knolls narrow strip subdivision with minimum lot size of 10,000 square feet is contrary to Carmel Valley Master Plan one acre lot development favored by the organizations represented at yesterday's meeting. The proposed subdivision starts at Carmel Valley road and runs north between Carmel Hills subdivision and Rancho Rio Vista tract.

"The County Planning Commission left this area in interim zoning at the time the Carmel Valley Master Plan, (stipulating one acre lots at the Valley mouth) was adopted, because of doubt about this area," Evans said. "It was the thinking of the County Commission that eventually land west of the Rio Vista line would be more contiguous to Carmel than Carmel Valley and development of property in 20,000 square feet building lots would give a transition zone between Mission Fields subdivision of 6,000 square feet lots and Carmel Hills subdivision of lots of 8,000 to 10,000 square feet.

"But I was surprised and disturbed at the last meeting of the County Planning Commission," he emphasized, "when I saw the Carmel Knolls subdivision plan with lots of 10,000 square feet in opposition to what had previously been decided for development in this area.

"I do not approve of development with less than minimum one-half acre lots."

No discussion of Carmel Knolls took place at the last County Commission meeting, Evans remarked, and went on to say that the commercial development of a motel, restaurant and service station planned in the Carmel Knolls subdivision, "is a serious matter. The County Planning Commission has given a great deal of thought to commercial development at the mouth of the Valley."

One of the reasons the county commission favored half-acre development around planned Valley mouth commercial development was to provide a gradual "taper" to Rancho Rio Vista one-acre development, Evans reported. Therefore the commission had left the area west of Rio Vista in interim zoning "subject to further com-

Monterey-Carmel School Boards In Unscheduled Huddle

At a quickie meeting of Carmel and Monterey School Boards in Monterey yesterday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, Monterey told Carmel members that they would suffer financial loss through the proposed annexation of the Valley school districts to the Carmel district.

Monterey also stated that the Carmel board should consider the effect on education on the whole, as well as on Carmel district and the Valley schools, before consenting to annexation.

The Pine Cone received notice of the meeting only two hours before it took place. Carmel and Carmel Valley taxpayers, whose interests are greatly involved, had no notification of the meeting.

An exciting new experiment in American theatre is going on down on Cannery Row. A man with an idea and a purpose which is not commercial, but creative and internal has appeared on the scene, and is making it work. He himself is surprised about it.

His name is Nate Shafer and he is no amateur. He has 14 years of solid background and theatrical experience behind him. He has worked on Broadway and in Hollywood. He studied directing at the Pasadena Playhouse for two years, after several years of studying drama at Pomona.

Nate Shater is no typical aesthete. He looks like a rather rugged guy who might just as easily be a hod-carrier as anything else. Although his ideas reminded us of Zen Buddhism, the Japanese Noh drama, and numerous other esoteric things, he had never heard of any of them.

Over at his place, the Row Theatre, opposite the Ocean View Hotel on Cannery Row, he stood and paced and talked.

The group has been going on for three months.

Nate's idea — after becoming disillusioned with the shallowness and superficiality of American theatre as it now exists was that if he went somewhere where there were not commercially minded actors and an emphasis on commercial theatre with the idea of "selling talent", he might get together a group of non-professionals who would work out the creativeness of theatre as it exist-

NO PARCEL DISTRIBUTION SATURDAY AT LEGION HALL

There will be no parcel service for Carmel boxholders on Saturday is the announcement of acting postmaster Fred Strong.

The American Legion Hall on Dolores Street was obtained as the Christmas season post office parcel annex only on condition that it be vacated by the post office on Saturday for a previously scheduled event.

Parcel service at the annex will resume as usual on Monday.

UNINCORP ANNEXATION DISCUSSION TONIGHT

Carmel Unincorporated meets tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Carmel High School cafeteria. All residents of the areas adjacent to Carmel are invited to be present when directors will be chosen for next year and the important subject of forming a new fire district versus annexing the outlying districts to the City of Carmel will be discussed.

Valley Parents Quiz Carmel School District Board

At the invitation of the Carmel School Board, members of the boards of Carmelo and Tularcitos Schools, and 30 interested parents met in Carmelo multi-use room on Tuesday evening to answer questions about annexing the two Valley schools to the Carmel district. Carmel School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell also attended the meeting.

Members of the two Valley school boards had no questions to ask the Carmel Board, but the parents present during the hour and a half meeting obtained answers to queries about retaining their report cards, the scholastic standing of Carmel High, how many graduates went to college, as well as answers to questions about methods of teaching basic subjects in Carmel elementary schools.

Dec. 12, 13, 14 — Carmel High at Gustine Invitational Tournament.

Tuesday, Dec. 17 — Monterey High at Carmel, 3 games, 4:00 p.m.

CARMEL WINS TWO FOR THREE AT PACIFIC GROVE

Winning the junior varsity and lightweight preliminary tilts but dropping the nod in the varsity game, Carmel High's hoop squads put in a full afternoon and evening of basketball at the Pacific Grove gym last Tuesday. Starting 4:00 o'clock, the Padre and Breaker jayvee squads tipped off in a game which saw Carmel's superior height turn the tilt into a rout as early as the second quarter. With the Wilkin twins, John and Chris, dominating both backboards, Carmel had a 25-13 edge at halftime. Jamie Holman and Hal Gregerson provided the scoring punch for the Padre jayvees, Holman hitting for 17 markers and Gregerson meshing 8.

In Tuesday's 5:30 clash, Carmel's lightweight squad picked up victory number one for the current season by outlasting the Wavelets for a 24-22 win. Down 12-10 going into the second half, the Carmel lights came with a rush in the third quarter to break in front 22-14 as Russ Wise and Pete Willcox put on a fine display of offensive and defensive rebounding. Wise was a demon on the offensive board, picking off 8 rebounds in the third quarter alone while Willcox was doing the honors off the defensive board. Although the Babes could hit on only 18% of their shots, an airtight defensive game limited the Pacific Grove lights to 8 field goals.

A disastrous first quarter betrayed Carmel's varsity as the hot-shooting Breakers broke away for a 17-5 lead which proved too much for the hard-trying Padres to overcome. Led by Archie Stewart and Art Drummond, the Breakers could do nothing wrong in the first half and at the rest period enjoyed a 30-17 bulge. The Big Padres came with a rush in the second half as Dale Dawson and Bill Hicks caught fire to burn the net with 15 points in the third period. Continuing to roll in the fourth quarter, it appeared that the Padres would catch the stalled Breakers as they closed the gap to 40-38 with three minutes left. However, a pair of costly fouls gave the Breakers a 43-38 edge going into the last minute and Carmel's 3-point effort fell two short of getting them up even with the winners. Bill Hicks, Carmel's junior forward, turned in his best effort of the current season in this one and appears to have established himself as one of the best forwards in the league. The husky Carmel Valley lad has a deft touch on his jump shot and is driving with the best of them. Dale Dawson did a fine job of playmaking in leading the Padres to a sizzling second half rally. Top rebounder for Carmel was lanky Phil Durbrow who picked off 18 rebounds during the game. Short on shooting ability but long on hustle, Durbrow needs only to gain shooting confidence to be one of the best hoopsters in the league.

Next action for the Carmel hoop squads comes next Tuesday when the Monterey Toreadores visit the Carmel pavilion for three games. Jayvees starting at 4, lightweights at 5:30, and varsity at 7.

UNDEFEATED PADRES FETED AT GRID DINNER

Following a season's work done to near perfection, Carmel High's varsity and junior-varsity football players gathered at the Spindrift last night to talk over the most successful season in Carmel High history and to completely deplete the smorgasbord table. Over 140 players, coaches, fathers, and guests were on hand to honor the two undefeated squads. With the yell leaders and song leaders providing a delicate touch to the occasion, a gala time was had by all and everyone agreed that a repeat performance of the football season and the dinner celebration should be done again next season.

Special awards for outstanding performances were announced at the dinner with Ted Smith being voted the year's Most Valuable Player, Parker Pollock winning the Kiwanis Club Team Player award and Andy Gray having his name added to the Silva Sportsmanship plaque.

GILROY TWO-TIMES PADRE HOOPSTERS

A pair of classy Gilroy High basketball teams got off to a good start in CCAL B-division play last Friday night as they edged Carmel's lightweight and varsity squads in games which were closely contested right down to the wire. The Gilroy Ponies capitalized on accurate shooting from the free throw line to nip the Padre Babes, 24-23, while Bob Hagen's favored varsity unit held off a last quarter Padre surge to finish in front, 39 to 37.

Dale Dawson hitting for 21 points on deftly executed jump shots and driving lay-ins, Carmel's varsity was in the game all the way against the heavily-favored Mustangs. Sparked by the brilliant all-around play of Elbert Enos, a fine playmaker and accurate outside shooter, the Mustangs led at the half, 24 to 20, but the lead had changed hands seven times during the half. Excellent rebounding by Bill Hicks, Art Wilkerson, and Phil Durbrow gave the Padres good control on the boards and shackled Gilroy's 6-5 center. Play execution by both teams was of mid-season caliber as the man-for-man patterns broke shooters free around cleverly set screens.

The lightweight preliminary tussle was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way with neither team able to hit with any consistency from the floor. Carmel's three platoons clamped a tight defense on the Ponies to hold the visitors to 7 field goals but the Blue & White lights hit 10 for 14 from the free throw line to make the difference in the game. Walt Helm and John Doud played outstanding floor games for the Babes and were instrumental in giving the local lights an even break on the backboards. Manning the three lightweight platoons were Russ Wise, Dave Farr, John Doud, Walt Helm, Pete Willcox, Ron Faia, Toby Edson, Pat Boyle, Dave Hansen, Phil O'Shea, Pete DePetra, Larry Dufur, Mike Dunham, Pete Osborne, and Mike Draper.

Letters . . .

Dear Wilma:

Thank you for the nice article concerning my appointment to the Board of Trustees of the Harrison Memorial Library. There is one point in the story, however, that must be corrected before sticklers for fact start checking the record. I refer to my almost posthumus award of All-American football glory.

I will not deny that my heart leaped up when I beheld the title of All-American fixed to my name. At last, I mused, a shocking injustice has been righted.

Mother and I, of course, always felt that I deserved the honor, but no sportswriter, coach, or other player in the United States could be persuaded to see things as we did. I still think they were all bribed to ignore me. (And that was difficult to do, for every Saturday I sat on the end of the bench so that my number would be clearly visible) If they had only come out to the practice field any Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday in August, September, October, November or December (or during the Spring training season of March, April and May) they would have seen my finest hours. Why wait until Saturday's game?

As far as I could observe on those few occasions when my eyes were clear of mud and sweat, the All-Americans I played against differed very little from me except in that they were bigger, faster, and more gifted.

But now, I am afraid, the accolade comes too late. I must reluctantly refuse the nomination. I shall always treasure the knowledge, however, that once, anyway, fleeting and erroneous as the title was, I was called "All-American."

Apologetically,
Donald Craig.

SYMBOL OF VALUE

By Joan Taylor

If you placed the word "Salt" before Bergan Evans' TV panel, I am wondering how many salty expressions they'd come up with—for there are many phrases derived from the taste of salt. I for one can think of "the old salt," "salty speech," "take it with a grain of salt," "the salt of skepticism," "salty wit" and the "salty tongue"—and I am sure there are many more. It's not so strange that salt should have inspired these well-known usages, for salt, after all, is sharp and tangy to the taste. Yet how many of us stop to think of the real value of salt itself?

It is known that animal life cannot exist without salt. Predatory animals, which eat no salt, get their supply from the blood of their prey, while vegetarian animals make paths through the jungle to the precious salt licks. Salt is also the symbol of human balance. Human beings cannot exist without salt, because salt is necessary in the body as one vital factor in maintaining the balance of body fluids. All the tissues and body fluids require a proper percentage of ordinary salt to function normally.

And then there's the value of its excellent seasoning function—especially when it's "Leslie's Salt." For wherever you find good food and good cooking you'll find there's "Leslie's Salt" on the table.

Nate Shafer Is Making Exciting Experiment In Cannery Row Theatre

ed back in the days of the Greek drama.

The main principle is participation. The actors live and enact the drama; and the audience too becomes a participant. The idea is not to amuse or entertain or even excite the audience; but to draw the audience into the thing; to make it so real that they also live it as it is going on.

Needless to remark, Nat Shafer has no light drawing room comedies on his agenda. He is interested in serious plays and serious work. He feels there is a need for this sort of thing. People can get amusement and entertainment, he feels, out of watching T.V. or going to the local movies.

For the beginning of this experiment Nate got together a group who had never had any acting experience before and put them to work doing experiments in the way of improvisations along the lines of what we used to call commedia del arte. However, it goes much deeper than that; and far beyond that. As he decribed it, it seemed almost similar to psychodrama. One takes a situation, usually an unresolvable one, and the actors try to work it out. In the process of doing this, they often become quite upset. If they just work the thing out logically, the solution doesn't work. Sometimes the solution they find is a completely illogical and emotional one, such as they wouldn't dare to find in real life.

As an instance, Nate Shafer described the case of a woman who had a dependent husband who looked to her for guidance in all matters, large and small. Finally the day came when she could stand it no longer. She told him about it. He threw a tantrum. "Like a child". Messed up the house. He did not tell the reviewer how the matter was resolved, but the point was it was resolved in numerous logical ways until the illogical emotional but psychologically true answer appeared.

He said that often, in these experiments, the actors found their resolution or the insoluble problem when they were bending down picking up broken dishes and facing the problem at the same time. Then something, with the combination of physical and psychological action, would come out.

He said, too, that some of his actors, in these experiments, would go through an actual breaking down process — which they would have in real life — and yet always with complete control and knowledge of what they were doing; and with an awareness which created excitement in the audience and which was at the same time a freeing experience in themselves.

So far all of this sounds strictly esoteric and psychological.

But this is not Nate's eventual aim. He aims at a real theatre. A theatre in which things really happen and which the audience feels as real happenings. Currently the Row Theatre is rehearsing Chekhov's Uncle Vanya, which will be their first production, probably about six months from now.

Nate Shafer does not believe in quick productions, rehearsed only for six weeks. After three months of working with his group experimentally, doing improvisations with various scenes and situations, he is proceeding with Uncle Vanya along the same lines. First they are working out the situations as situations with the whole burden of feeling and thinking and realizing backgrounds falling on the actors themselves; later on they will take on and rehearse the actual lines.

Nate Shafer plans to have a permanent theatre here and one that supports its actors. He thinks he will have a nucleus of ten or twelve. As he pointed out, one of the chief troubles with theatre in America is that its actors are not supported and that they do not work as groups. All of the great theatres in history, the Greeks', Moliere's theatre, the Elizabethan Theatre, the Moscow Art Theatre and others, worked as groups. There was not our present star system nor commercial system. In other countries, such as Sweden and Germany, theatrical groups are supported by the state. Here we have nothing but Broadway and Hollywood, aside from the little theatre, which largely puts on drawing room comedies.

He feels strongly that if a thing is good it will be supported by the public, and the reason American theatre hasn't been supported is because it hasn't been good enough.

He has refused several offers of financial help to build a theatre on Cannery Row as he feels that would be putting the cart before the horse. He wants first to have a production that is really worthwhile in process; and then there will be a building for it. He does not believe in making the building first.

He believes that the Monterey Peninsula is the ideal spot for such an experiment in American theatre. He feels that places like Hollywood and New York are impossible. Here, with a potential audience appreciating good art, he thinks it can have a chance.

Among his present nucleus or permanent acting group are the following, few of whom have had previous theatrical experience: Steve and Ruth Kahn, Helen Mc Reynolds, Elizabeth Godbe, Joyce Bird, Emilija Sosic, Bruce Harris, and Pauline Jacobus. There are many other members too, but they are still in the working stage.

Due to the fact that the work is exacting, for they rehearse three nights a week in addition to voice and speech lessons and meeting with each other to work on their improvisations, relatively few can find enough time to devote to it.

Nate Shafer welcomes new members or anyone who is interested, and is particularly anxious at this point to get more men in the group. Rehearsals are from 6:30 until 10:00 on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Incidentally, Nate Shafer's partner in this venture is Don Ross, who teaches speech, and is a veteran actor in films, TV and on the stage. They have been associated since 1948 when both were studying at Pasadena Playhouse.

SEN. KNOWLAND SPEAKS

U. S. Senator William F. Knowland speaks tonight at Monterey Peninsula College Armory at 8:30 o'clock. He will discuss major issues in California politics.

Senator Knowland is leaving the Senate to seek the Republican nomination for governor of California in 1958. Tonight is the only time he is scheduled to speak on the Monterey Peninsula before next year's election. The event is open to the public without charge.

Before the talk at MPC the Senator will dine with members of the Monterey County Republican Central Committee and other Republican organizations at Castlewood Inn in Salinas. He will make a brief informal talk at this gathering.

Valley Votes Jan. 14 On Annexation To Carmel School Dist.

Carmel Valley voters go to the polls on January 14 to decide whether or not Tularcitos and Carmelo school districts shall be annexed to Carmel. The date was set by Gladys Stone, county superintendent of schools, after certification by the county clerk's office of signatures on petitions for annexation received by her from the two Valley districts.

On Tuesday night Carmel school board may make a decision on annexation, although they can wait until after the January 14 election but must file a decision before January 27.

On January 27 this decision and the result of the Valley election goes to the county board of supervisors, if annexation is favored.

On February 1 the Valley schools may officially become part of the Carmel school system if favorable decisions are made, although annexation actually becomes effective on July 1, first day of the fiscal year.

On February 1, Carmel school board is expected to advertise for a bond election. After April 1 they could hold a bond election with Valley voters going to the polls equally with Carmel district citizens to decide if money for school construction should be raised by a bond issue.

Douglas And Buzz Semi-Finalists For Plush Scholarships

Douglas McAulay and David "Buzz" R. Richardson, Carmel High School seniors, have been named semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition. They outscored 300,000 senior students in the United States to be among the 7,500 semi-finalists. They are eligible to take a three-hour college board examination to be given throughout the country on January 11. Finalists chosen from this competition will win college scholarships from the four million dollars allocated in 1958 for National Merit Awards. Douglas and David became semi-finalists with scores made in the Scholarship Qualifying Test, a college aptitude examination given in 14,000 high schools on October 22.

Merit scholarships are sponsored by over 60 American business and industrial firms, as well as professional societies, foundations and even individuals. Merit Scholars choose their own college and course of study. The scholarships range from $100 per year to $2,200 according to financial need and are provided for four years. Colleges chosen by Merit Scholars are given grants-in-aid averaging $2,000 per Merit Scholar.

David wants to enter the research field of higher mathematics. He has already completed his high school math work and is taking college courses in calculus, physics and philosophy while completing his senior year. He has been in the Carmel school system since the sixth grade, is a tennis player, distance runner and high jumper, a member of the California Scholarship Federation, and interested in creative writing. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Richardson. Mr. Richardson is personnel manager for Standard Oil Company in Tripoli, Libya, and two summers ago David travelled alone to visit his father, also exploring Italy and Spain. He plans to attend Lawrence College or Swarthmore.

Douglas, president of the student body at Carmel High, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. McAulay and the brother of high school student Martin McAulay. He plans to be an electronics engineer studying first either at Cal Tech or M.I.T. He has been a student at Carmel High for two years, before that attending Monterey schools. He is a member of California Scholarship Federation, a radio amateur, hot rod enthusiast and a swimmer.

Ida Scott

Miss Ida Gregory Scott died on November 28 in a Santa Clara County Hospital after a long period of failing health. She made her home in Carmel for 15 years before leaving four years ago to live, first in Carmel Valley, and then in Salinas and Santa Clara County.

Miss Scott was born on September 17, 1873, in Detroit, Michigan. She studied voice in Paris with Jean Dureske and was a concert singer and teacher in Paris, London and Australia before becoming a concert impresario in San Francisco.

In Carmel she taught voice placement for many years and delighted her friends with reminiscences of musical people she had known throughout the world. Miss Scott, a perceptive reader, had also assembled a fine library during her active career.

She is survived by a niece, Mrs. Chester D. Carmean of Stockton.

Charles Hodges

Charles Henry Hodges died on Friday night in a local rest home which he entered a month ago because of failing health.

Mr. Hodges was born in England on December 13, 1865. He lived in Beaver, Utah, before moving to Carmel ten years ago and for 30 years before that had visited here frequently. He was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Survivors are his wife, Mayme, of Carmel; six children, Mrs. Arnold Grimshaw and Lynn Hodges of Carmel, Raymond Hodges and Harold L. Hodges of Pacific Grove, and Mrs. Frank Enos and Mrs. Fernando Enos of Arcadia; a brother, Ernest Hodges of Salt Lake City; 12 grandchildren; 15 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon in the South Utah Mortuary, Beaver, Utah.

Program Announced For Monday Night's Symphony Concert

Paul Creston's Dance Overture is the first number on the program of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra to be given in King Hall at the United States Naval Postgraduate School, Del Monte, at 8:30 p.m. Monday night.

Second number is Chopin's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in F minor with William Masselos of New York, one of this country's outstanding young pianists, as soloist. After intermission the orchestra, directed by Gregory Millar, will play Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Paul Creston is one of America's most successful contemporary composers and has won two Guggenheim Fellowships and first prize in the Paris Referendum concert among other awards. His Dance Overture on Monday evening's program was commissioned by the National Federation of Music Clubs for their 1955 convention in Miami and in its four sections, Spanish, English, French and American, uses dance rhythms of the four nationalities which have developed Florida.

Chopin soloist William Masselos comes to the Peninsula after a performance with the San Francisco Little Symphony, also directed by Gregory Millar He is American born and trained at the Juillard School of Music, a pupil of Carl Friedberg. At 33 years of age he is considered by critics, both here and abroad, as one of America's four or five top pianists. He has also made recordings for Dial, MGM and Columbia records.

The second Symphony concert of this season is being given in King Hall, the peninsula's newest auditorium, designed for perfect accoustics, through the courtesy of the commandant of the Naval Postgraduate School, Rear Admiral E. E. Stone.

CHRISTMAS CAROUSEL

By Joan Taylor

Soon we'll all be hopping the Christmas Carousel, taking off starry-eyed, for the roundelay of holiday festivities, our arms groaning with ribboned packages and our hearts filled with cordiality and good cheer to all men. Yes, it's that time again—time to resurrect the red berries and tinsel and the Silver Star, to be placed with loving hands, in its niche of honor, at the top of the tree!

For when the traditional Yule Spirit is in full bloom and the halls decked with holly and good things to eat, we all live again that wonderful story of a starlit Eve 2000 years ago, — and although Christmas is for small fry and Dunder and Blitzen, it does wrap us all up in wonder and enchantment and we want to be ready for it.

The time to plan for Christmas fun and frolic is before the first carol is sung, the first tree laden with its sparkling adornments. In fact, it might be a good idea to go over the list right now. Do you have all the makings of a first-rate holiday cocktail party? Don't forget to include a generous supply of "Galileo Brand Salami" — the Gold Medal Award Winner of the Golden Gate Salami Company, delivered daily to your grocer.

Music And Dance . . .

By Mary Lindsay-Oliver

The Christmas Ballet presented at the Nix Studio Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, and scheduled again for tonight, is outstanding. Its beauty, devoid of the more ordinary ballet pretensions, holds its audience enchanted, not only in the opening charm of the well known Les Sylphides, with its choreography by Joanne Nix, but particularly in The Little Match Girl, Hans Christian Andersen's touching Christmas story which is an original ballet entirely created by Joanne Nix to the music of Tschaikowsky, Ibert, Schubert and Mozart. Mrs. Nix's talent and authority is recognized by the leading Dance Teachers' Societies of both England and America. It's one thing to produce the complicated technique of the dance, but quite another to bring about an effective drama in those actions. Both of these acquisitions Joanne Nix, with Dudley Nix as production manager, have finely accomplished and placed before the public a truly refined entertainment which is a joy to behold in this age of often either vulgarized or stupid projects. The young people of the Nix Ballet Academy seem so thoroughly to enjoy it that there is no evidence of the hard preparation ballet entails, yet the dancing is on a truly high standard of simplicity which is surely real art.

A Christmas Tree prologue to The Little Match Girl of a mother reading the story to her two small children finds Babs Richardson as narrator in musical modulations of her voice. This gives place to the winter street scene effectively painted by Diana Hardy (who also did the back drop to Les Sylphides) where the Little Match Girl, cleverly acted in decided talent by Stephanie Cummings, experiences privations, heartbreaks and visions before she is rescued by the angels from her death in the street. The little body tenderly lifted by the "Turkey," Suzanne Simard, brings sympathetic tears to the onlookers. Earlier the Turkey dances contortions that include remarkable subtlety in backbends drawing forth spontaneous applause. The parts of the Children, Old Couple, Snobs, Grandmother and other characters in Christmas coloring that dance in the street are interestingly filled by Catherine Simard, Barit Keeble, Katy Harder, Pamela Gamble, Rita Pinard, Ciji Ware, Susan Shirley, Georganne Demarest, Gay Morris, Deirdre Carney, Joanne Sollecito, Sherrie Nix, Judy Drake, Joan Willicombe, Leslie Champe and Marie Patterson, who, as the little Street Busker has a solo that draws applause as also does the Ballet Dancer Pamela Gamble. Regrettably I did not view the opening prologue to Les Sylphides but saw most of it in its charming picture and movements in white costumes against the blue and white back-drop.

The Sylphs were Rita Pinard, Joan Willicombe, Crissie Marihart, Pamela Marihart, Joanne Sollecito, Marianne Sefier and Carolyn Sevier; and the Chopin music gave opportunity in the waltz to Deirdre Carney, and in two Mazurkas to Gay Morris and Pamela Gamble bringing them special applause.

Some were fascinated with a double view in the long mirror one side of the auditorium and enjoyed the sympathetic setting of the Nix Studio-Theatre. It is hoped the whole satisfying presentation can be repeated next Christmas, but those able should certainly see it tonight in Carmel or Pacific Grove High School Auditorium Saturday afternoon. Eleanor Gamble is responsible for the colorful costuming, Reed Putnam for the lighting and James Meagher for the music.

Life and Philosophies

Ruth St. Denis as an outstanding creator and personality of the dance immediately followed the vogue of California's Isadora Duncan, and although her actual dancing days are now behind her, she is still before the American public with illimitable power and grace, giving forth in a deep voice her artistic and philosophical knowledge and beliefs to illumine and inspire others. This, Miss St. Denis did Friday, in the Dolores Street Studio.

Perhaps there was nothing the long career of St. Denis did not experience in the dance, and since the Arts are the highest medium of human expression, the spiritual development of their strongest votaries is evidenced when evolved through individuals of fine principle and creative endeavor. In the tales she gave of her history, whys and wherefores, freedom, creation and above all, the importance of the spiritual entity, Miss St. Denis ended the first half of her program with this challenge, "You are not just a speck in the world, you are the universe!" Later she asserted that so long as women co-operate with any government by men for war, they will remain slaves.

Following a short intermission a fascinating and beautifully garbed Egyptian dance was given by Barbara Amchaes, her traveling companion, which thoroughly deserved the applause it raised, and St. Denis then appeared in the flowing robes of a Hindu and "danced" with her hands, arms and drapery in statuesque and poetic poses. The flexibility of her long, expressive hands is extraordinary and seems to replace her dancing feet in charming pictures of grace and dignity. She finished with readings of some of her beautiful poems.

Soldier Drowns While Swimming Near Carmel Beach

Private Charles Gressel, student of Spanish at the Army Language School, drowned while swimming off Carmel Beach on Sunday afternoon.

He went into the water with two companions a quarter mile north of Ocean Avenue. When they decided to return to shore Gressel swam about five yards behind them. His companions noticed he was missing when they reached the beach and notified Carmel police who in turn called the Coast Guard, which sent a skiff; the Naval Air Facility, which dispatched a helicopter; the Carmel Fire department, which responded with the Red Cross ambulance manned by department members; and a doctor who went immediately to the beach.

A woman in the crowd which collected near the foot of Ocean Avenue saw what she thought was clothing drifting in the surf. Private Albert Eichinger of Fort Ord went into the water and discovered Gressel's body 45 minutes after he had been reported missing.

Carmel firemen tried to revive Gressel before he was pronounced dead by the doctor.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves,
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

REVIEW: NATURE AND THE AMERICAN by Hans Huth. University of California Press, 1957. $7.50.

This is a large and handsomely printed book of 250 pages, measuring 10½ by 7 inches. In addition to the text there are 64 full-page plates, very largely illustrating the history of American interest in nature and in the natural scene. There are also many woodcuts in the text and vignettes at the beginning of each chapter. The frontispiece and book jacket consist of a colored reproduction of an oil painting by Winslow Homer, showing an ascent on horseback of Mt. Washington (New Hampshire) in 1869.

The book is an absolute necessity for anyone interested in the history of man's appreciation of nature in this country. The author, Hans Huth, is a professional historian, who is at present Curator of Research at the Art Institute of Chicago. He is also a consultant to the National Park Service in historical matters. By avocation he is a mountaineer with much experience in the Alps. This combination of interests and professional abilities fits him ideally for the task that he has set himself in the writing of this book.

In the Sierra Club Bulletin (annual number) for March 1948 appeared a long article by him, entitled Yosemite; the Story of an Idea. The book is for the most part an enlargement of the material contained in this article. There are 15 pages of documented references to his source material and a 10-page bibliography of titles which the author says "do not comprise all sources which have been consulted."

In both book and article he starts with the colonial attitude toward nature and continues with a discussion of the work and writings of the Bartrams, John and his son, William, Benjamin Franklin, St. Jean de Crevecoeur, Alexander Wilson, John James Audubon, Philip Freneau and others of the 18th century.

The Romantic Period includes a study of William Cullen Bryant, James Fenimore Cooper, Washington Irving and James Kirk Paulding. The chapter also discusses the artists of the period, especially Thomas Cole, the leader of the new school of romantic painting.

With the waning of romanticism Emerson and Thoreau began to dominate the scene. Later came John Burroughs and John Muir. Many lesser known writers, such as Thomas Starr King and Thomas Wentworth Higginson, come in for some attention from the author.

In the book, as in the Sierra Club Bulletin article, the climax of American interest in nature appears in the development of the national park system and the correlated phases of conservation. Yosemite was set aside in 1864, although not at that time as a national park, and Yellowstone in 1871. Mr. Huth declares that "the national park idea" was born with the publication of George P. Marsh's book, Man and Nature, in 1864, was developed through a national interest in Yosemite first, and later in Yellowstone and other national parks.

The final chapter on conservation brings us strictly up to date. In a closing paragraph the author quotes the well-known British writer, G. M. Trevelyan, in a statement that every conservationist will applaud: "Natural beauty is the ultimate spiritual appeal of the universe, of nature, or of the God of nature, to their nursling man. Unless he consciously protects it at the partial expense of some of his other greedy activities, he will cut off his own spiritual supplies, and leave his descendants a helpless prey forever to the base materialism of man and vulgar sights."

TOM PERRY IS BOAT BUILDER

Thomas K. Perry has taken sufficient time from the practice of law to build a 24 foot sport cruiser, powered by two marine motors. The craft is moored at Moss Landing in a berth formerly used by Frank Putnam for his sports fishing boat. Mr. Perry bought a kit and stuck with it till the job was finished.

Sheriff's Deputies Are Investigating School Vandalism

A litter of upset garbage cans, strewn rubbish, broken windows and goal posts, opened lockers with contents destroyed and thrown about, overturned street signs, a broken coke machine, a torn up bulletin board, overturned and uprooted potted plants, and upset and scattered tables and chairs greeted students and staff at Carmel High School on Tuesday morning, the work of six vandals spotted by custodian Carl Naslund about 11:00 o'clock Monday evening when, returning from closing the music room, he heard the smashing of glass in the school boiler room.

Naslund chased the boys, one of whom was wearing a red jacket, but was unable to catch them before they reached cars parked by the baseball field and drove away. He estimated the vandals were junior or senior students, judging by their size, but was unable to identify any of them. He notified the sheriff's office which is investigating the matter.

Later Tuesday morning two of the boys' physical education classes cleared away the litter, repotted plants and replaced furniture leaving to be repaired only the signs, goalposts, windows, and a fire extinguisher thrown into the inner court from the roof of the boiler room.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

Ruth Galvin Thornburg, Librarian

Two books dealing with problems are first on the list this week. The one on international problems is entitled Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy and was written by Henry A. Kissinger. It was published for the Council on Human Relations and has been rated by some authorities as "the most important document on foreign relations ... in the last ten years." It is possible that some portions of the book may have been rendered obsolete by recent disclosures of Russian air advances. It is a very thorough discussion of all phases of the subject, and must still be of great value in giving straight answers to a lot of questions.

The book for those with personal problems was written by Dean James A. Pike of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Here are practical discussions of such common problems as facing middle age, making your marriage work, learning how to make decisions, and even such relatively minor things as getting a good night's rest. The title of the book is The Next Day.

Charles P. Curtis has written a book entitled A Commonplace Book. According to Webster, a commonplace book is one composed of a collection of passages for ready references for application to certain cases. The theory is, we suppose, that when such a case arises, the seeker hies himself to the commonplace book and there finds a saying which exactly fits the situation at hand. The commonplace book is different in one way, which is that the author has written his own wise comments on the quoted passages. Mr. Curtis is a professor at Harvard University and has published several books prior to this one.

A man who has spent many years in Great Britain as a newspaper correspondent is Drew Middleton of the New York Times. His new book is entitled These Are the British, and in it he describes the "quiet revolution by a quiet people" which has changed England into the modern nation it now is.

Elizabeth Linington who wrote The Proud Man has just published a new novel called Monsieur Janvier. It is an exciting adventure story of eighteenth century Europe. The author is a resident of this state, which makes no difference, but always seems interesting to California readers.

Nora Loft's new book is entitled Scent of Cloves and the obliging publishers have scented the jacket with cloves. It made handling the book delightful and we hope you get a chance to read it before the scent wears off. Most library books smell of humanity, which is a comfortable, lived-in sort of smell. With cloves now, we got it different for a while. But dragging ourselves away from smells, the story of the book is laid in the Dutch Indies at the time of Cromwell, and is a good one, well told.

Perhaps some of you are familiar with the series of books about Christmas which Helen Topping Miller has been doing for the past few years. Each year she puts a Christmas situation in the home of one of America's past great men. This year the title is Christmas at Mount Vernon. The story tells us of one Christmas when Martha Washington came to Annapolis to take her husband back to their home in Virginia. This small book is Mrs. Miller's fourth book about Christmas, and is a warm lovely story.

Mrs. Lovgren

Mrs. Veroqua Sheldon Lovgren, wife of the Reverend Bernard Lovgren, rector of St. John's Chapel, Del Monte, died on Saturday in a local hospital.

Mrs. Lovgren was born in Essex, New York. She attended Emerson College of Oratory in Boston, Massachusetts, graduating with a bachelor of literary interpretation degree. She taught dramatic art in Lexington, Kentucky; Sullins College, Bristol, Virginia; and at Southern Seminary in Buena Vista, Virginia; before being head of the department of dramatic art at the University of Oklahoma in Norman where her marriage to Mr. Lovgren took place in 1922.

After her marriage she maintained a private studio in Norman and then in Joplin, Missouri, and Miami, Oklahoma. During the time her husband was a postgraduate student at Harvard University, Mrs. Lovgren taught dramatic art at Mt. Ida School for Girls in Newton, Massachusetts. Later, while living in Concord, New Hampshire, Mrs. Lovgren produced and directed plays for ten years for the Concord Community Players as well as continuing her private teaching.

In 1945 Mrs. Lovgren moved to San Francisco when her hausband was made dean of Grace Cathedral. In 1951 she came to live in Carmel when Mr. Lovgren became rector of St. Johns' Chapel.

Johnny Lamb Agency Is In New Quarters

The Johnny Lamb Agency, advertising firm in Monterey, has moved into new quarters at 662 Cass Street. Mr. Lamb, who has been affiliated with radio in the Tri-County area for the past ten years, opened his Monterey advertising and publicity firm last July. He is the commentator who, for the last eight years, has broadcast the Bing Crosby golf tournament on its national radio hookup.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamb and their three children live in the Monterey Peninsula Country Club. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Lamb was Betty Stagnaro of Santa Cruz. The Lamb youngsters are Gary, 8; Kenneth, 6, and Betty Jo who is 5.

"Business expansion and an increase in the number of accounts we service to newspapers, radio and television, made our move to new, larger quarters necessary," Mr. Lamb said in announcing the change of location of his firm. "We look forward with confidence to the continued growth of our agency which reflects, we feel, the business trend in this community."

Buckner Novel In Translation

Former Pebble Beach resident Robert Buckner has received word that his first novel, Sigrid and the Sergeant, recently published by Appleton-Century-Crofts is being translated for French publication by Presses de la Cite. English rights have been bought by William Heinemann Ltd.

Mr. Buckner is at present a producer associated with Twentieth Century-Fox in Hollywood and is working on the picture Hell-Bent Kid. He has produced 24 films and written 42 screenplays, including Yankee Doodle Dandy and Bright Victory, which won the Metzger award. He has also written 85 short stories, but it was not until he was in Europe while his son was stationed in Germany with the 10th Division, that he found material for a novel.

Sigrid and the Sergeant concerns a scheme to trap American GI's into marriage, and "although it has a solid basis of reality, its only purpose is to entertain," says Mr. Buckner.

Helen Barker Show In Valley

Twenty seascapes and landscapes in oil and watercolor by Helen Barker of Carmel are being shown at the Carmel Valley Inn until January 4. Before coming to live in Carmel two years ago, Mrs. Barker studied with Christian von Scheideu in Los Angeles.

"However, my mother, uncle and aunt are all artists, so painting is a family interest," says Mrs. Barker, mother of Carmel High School freshman Ronald Barker and wife of Frank Barker who operates a barber shop on Lincoln Street.

During the past year Helen Barker has won two awards for her painting. She took first prize with an oil in the Los Angeles Tuesday Afternoon Club Show and second award in the Ebell Salon of Art Show in Los Angeles with another oil. One of her pictures was also included in the just closed Society of Western Artists Show at the De Young Museum in San Francisco.

Pop Not Santa Claus, Had Flu

Up and about again is Pop Smith after a nasty bout with flu which kept him from continuing his annual Santa Claus duties at a local department store. First week he was ill Bud Houghton substituted for him, but the second week Pop found the flu had left him so shaky he couldn't be his usual cheerful Santa Claus self and regretfully resigned.

"It really hurts not to talk to those children this year," he says.

However, before Pop became ill, he had met over a thousand children on two Santa Claus train rides so he feels his Christmas season is not entirely ruined.

Legion Auxiliary Xmas Party

Members of Carmel Unit 512, American Legion Auxiliary, and their guests met at the Legion Hall on Tuesday evening for a pot-luck supper and business meeting followed by an exchange of gifts from a Christmas tree. The holiday atmosphere was further enhanced by the dinner table decorations of Christmas candles and greenery.

During the business meeting, rehabilitation chairman, Mrs. Andres Gomez, reported that she, with Unit 512 president Mrs. Charles Askew, and Mrs. Kenneth Jones and Mrs. Bea Torres went to Palo Alto Veterans Hospital on December 3 to assist in the second day of the Christmas gift shop sale. The Carmel Legion Auxiliary members were gratified to find that the gift of apparel, valued at $130, which they had sent to the sale was almost all sold the first day the clothes were displayed for purchase.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

God's healing and saving power will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Preserver of Man" is the Golden Text from Deuteronomy (33:27): "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."

A number of experiences of the Apostle Paul are related in the Bible selections to be read which include Paul's healing (Acts 14) of the "man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (343:25): "Anciently those apostles who were Jesus' students, as well as Paul who was not one of his students, healed the sick and reformed the sinner by their religion. Hence the mistake which allows words, rather than works, to follow such examples!"

ORDINANCE NO. 241 N.S.

AN ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING ADDITIONAL OPEN SPACE FOR CERTAIN OCCUPANCIES.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. That Division 1, Part X, of the Ordinance Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea be amended by the addition of a new section to be known as Section 987-C, which shall read as follows:

"Section 987-C. Any site devoted to occupancies "A" to "H" inclusive as defined in the Building Code, shall be provided with NOT LESS than 2% of the total area of such building site as an open space area for the purpose of providing areas for landscaping. Such open space shall be in addition to all other open spaces which may be required for the occupancy involved, or the zone in which the building site is situated. Such open spaces shall be in addition to such areas as are required for ingress, egress, parking, walkways, etc. Any area to be credited to the required open spaces of this section shall have a minimum dimension on any side of not less than two (2) feet. All such areas allocated to the open space requirements of a building site shall not be surfaced, covered, enclosed or treated in such manner as to make it impossible or impractical to establish and maintain landscaping and gardening thereon. The length of such frontage shall be not less than 25% of the property frontage along the public street, alley or public right of way fronting on the building site. All existing building sites within the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, now having improvement of the occupancies "A" to "H" inclusive, in which there are now in existence open spaces to the amount of 2% or less of the building site area, shall be required to reserve such area for the purposes as outlined in this section. The Carmel Planning Commission may of its own motion, or upon proper application made thereto, vary any or all of the specific requirements of this section with respect to any given building site by an amount in each instance not to exceed 25% of such requirement, except that in the event the plans submitted by the applicant reveal provisions for open spaces for landsscaping other than those required hereinabove to be a functional part of the public use of said structure. Then the amount of such variance shall not exceed 50% of such requirement."

Section 2. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

CERTIFICATION OF CITY CLERK

I, the undersigned, City Clerk of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of Ordinance No. 241 N.S. which was given its first reading at an Adjourned Meeting of the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, held on the 26th day November, 1957, and finally adopted at a Regular Meeting of said Council on the 4th day of December, 1957.

ORDINANCE NO. 242 N.S.

AN ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING INTERIM ZONING REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO CERTAIN USES AND THE FOLLOWING FACTORS WITH RELATION THERETO: NAMELY, DESIGN AND APPEARANCE OF BUILDINGS, OFF-STREET PARKING AND LOADING ZONES, SET-BACKS, OPEN SPACES AND PROVISIONS FOR LANDSCAPING.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. That Section 987-B of Part X, Article 1, of the Ordinance Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea be amended to read as follows:

"Section 987-B. No structure of the A to H inclusive, occupancies, as such occupancies are defined in the Building Code, shall hereafter be erected or substantially altered to provide for a business use not carried on upon the building site of such proposed new or altered structures previous to October 31, 1955, unless and until the Planning Commission shall have approved such use in such location as compatible in type of use with the surrounding area. No structure of the A to H, inclusive, occupancies, as such occupancies are defined in the Building Code, shall hereafter be erected or substantially altered unless the appearance of the proposed structure is found to be in accord with the design and coloring of structures in the general area; and unless adequate off-street vehicle parking facilities and/or loading zones shall be provided within the building site of such structures when and if required by the Planning Commission, and unless set-backs, open spaces and provisions for permanent landscaping are considered by the Planning Commission as adequate in view of the proposed use. In determining the adequate off-street parking facilities and/or loading zones required, set-backs, open spaces and provisions for landscaping, the Planning Commission shall base the requirements upon (a) Type of Business, (b) Location of Site, (c) Size of Site, (d) Topography of Site, (e) Existing Density of Permanent-type Construction in Immediate Vicinity, and (f) Width and Classification of Street upon which Site Abuts. Any resolution authorizing the issuance of a building permit shall specify (a) type and acceptability of use, (b) specific parking and/or loading zone requirements, if any, for the site, (c) approval of the proposed appearance of the structure with such additional conditions or requirements as may be needed to assure conformance with its decisions, (d) such requirements of set-backs, open space and landscaping as may be required. A copy of the resolution shall be made part of the building permit when issued to the applicant. Any decision rendered under this section may be appealed to the City Council in the same manner as an appeal respecting an adjustment permit as provided in Article 8 of this Division 1, Part X.

This section shall be and become inoperative from and after December 31, 1958."

Section 2. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordinance is declared to be an urgency ordinance, a statement of such urgency being as follows:

That it is vital and necessary to the city to continue interim zoning regulation so as to enable the city to complete its master plan; that the present interim zoning ordinance will terminate before this ordinance could be adopted in any other fashion, with a resulting disruption of uniform regulation. That in the premises this ordinance shall take effect upon its final passage and adoption.

ALADDIN IN CARMEL

Re-printed below is a newspaper clipping, written by a roving reporter, who was greatly taken by the wondrous things displayed in Mr. Winter's shop, The Village Jeweler, on Dolores Street.

"Aladdin, lost in his cave and putting out his hand to the trees which bore the fruits of glorious color and fashioned of precious stones, was no more astounded than is the Carmel visitor who just happens into the 'ear-ring' shop. It can't be, one thinks, on being told that there is a place whose sole stock in trade is ear-rings. It is altogether unlikely that a merchant would say, 'This one thing I do', and then stick to ear-rings, of all things.

"And it isn't quite that way, really, because there are a few—a very few—other bits of jewelry to be found in this little cave. But these are far outshown by the main item, a piece de resistance which whets but never satisfies the appetite.

"Recently a New York salesman unloaded his sample cases before the doorway of this small establishment. He came as missionary to unknown parts, for isn't Carmel, California, a tiny hinterland village which tries hard but doesn't quite know how? On stepping inside, he fell back, dismayed. 'Oh, no!' was his shout of disbelief. There was no need for missionary work here—not in his department, anyhow.

"'The Village Jeweler', whose astute owners have collected all this loot and put it under one roof, literally has the largest and most surprising display of ear-rings in the United States. No foolin'. And it takes a mighty stout-hearted woman to pass up the feast.

"Did your grandmother own some beautifully wrought bracelets of soft gold, with classic designs running through the pattern? And, having had these appraised, have you taken them down to the bank for safe keeping? You can match them here in ear-rings, and at a painless price. Persons knowing the value of Grandma's keep-sakes will be properly impressed at the ear-rings you have chosen to go with them, and you can save the price of an extra safety deposit box.

"Every color of the spectrum, softly muted, is here, in ascending or descending scale, as to hues and shades and tints. If it's azure or lapis Lazuli or rose or emerald or amethyst or topaz or gold or silver you prefer, you mention it. At once you find yourself in the predicament of the fellow who likes pie and is let loose in the cafeteria where the chef has out-done himself this day with apple and peach and cherry and lemon and chocolate and gooseberry and blueberry and raisin and custard and currant and squash and mince. He can't eat them all but he's happier than larks in the pop-corn.

"There are whole trays of each color, quite by itself. And these range in style from what you would wear to your Grand-Aunt Emma's tea for the ladies' knitting group to something dazzling for a night on the town in company with six drunken sailors. You accept a lapful of jewels from the trusting soul who is the proprietor and have yourself a big time. All HE has to do is hope your check won't bounce.

"There is something barbaric in almost every female. She 'hates' jewelry, maybe, but when she says 'jewelry' she almost never means little things to stick in her ears. Count the number of women you see who are not wearing brooches, bracelets, rings, necklaces or tiaras but who are wearing ear-rings. That's because The Little Woman feels kind of undressed without them. The Village Jewelers is for the likes of her. And it's worth the trip — from ANY distance. A Christmas shoppers' paradise."—Adv.

Planners, Citizens, Keith Evans Differ On Little Lot Knolls

mercial development at the Valley mouth." He also mentioned the economic hardship in subdividing such highly priced property as Carmel Knolls in large lots due to the "fantastic" cost of roads, sewers and utility service provisions demanded by law.

His exit speech left the Carmel Commission and audience of eighteen persons astounded when he said, "The indication at the last meeting of the county planning commission was that the route of the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway will go through the center of Carmel Knolls."

Enos Fouratt, of Carmel Taxpayers Association and Carmel Board of Realtors rose to announce that the change to half acre zoning west of Rio Vista was "unofficial." He stated that at the next meeting of directors of both groups, a statement of opposition to the Carmel Knolls small lot development would be officially framed. Fouratt also indicated that Carmel Unincorporated was considering similar action and a group of property owners in Rio Vista tract was forming to oppose Carmel Knolls.

Corum Jackson, spoke for himself and James Doud, present in the audience. Jackson and Doud, as developers of one acre minimum Rancho Rio Vista, felt that development of land west of Rio Vista should be maintained in one acre lots. Jackson and Doud had sold property to persons who had built expensive homes in the restricted Rio Vista tract, and had obligations to protect the investment of these people, Mr. Jackson told the Carmel Planning Commission. Carmel Knolls small lot subdivision was contrary to what had been agreed on for development of property in the area, and set the stage for "a controversial matter in the future," he concluded.

"Carmel Knolls opens a Pandora's box," said Dudley Swim, representing Carmel Valley Property Owners Association. Disregard of the Carmel Valley Master Plan one acre "irreducible minimum" zoning in the area and of Carmel Planning Commission recommendations about areas contiguous to Carmel, by the County Planning Commission, was "a mockery." Once the one acre zoning was varied, the smaller lot development "would spread like measles," he said.

"There should be no compromise to this principle of retaining rural residential areas in the Valley."

He also stated that approval of one acre minimum lot size "was reluctantly given" by Carmel Valley property owners when their Master Plan was made and there should be "no transition zone."

"We should not allow ourselves to be pushed around," he continued, pointing out that Rio Vista one acre development was "a monument and credit to this area."

Referring to Mr. Evans' remark about economic problems of subdividers, Mr. Swim stated there was no need for the county planning commission or adjacent property owners "to underwrite the problems of subdividers."

Letters opposing Carmel Knolls from Leo Tanous, president of Carmel Board of Realtors, Barnet Segal of Carmel Insurance Agents Association and Mrs. Winifred Cleriman were read to the Carmel commission before the commission rang down the curtain on Carmel Knolls discussion by instructing City Clerk Larry Rose to send a letter to the County Planning Commission asking them to deny Carmel Knolls' re-zoning and embodying five points;

Carmel people favor "feathered out" residential suburban development around the city to close small lot subdivisions;

Carmel Planning Commission supports Carmel Valley Master Plan one acre development at the Valley mouth;

Feels one acre lot Rio Vista Tract subdivision should be protected, and approved this development;

Supports Carmel Valley Property Owners Association one acre stand, and that Carmel Knolls is definitely part of lower Carmel Valley and the Carmel Commission is against a transition zone.

Curtain line came from Carmel Planning Commission Chairman George Willox who asked those present to;

"Go to the County Planning Commission meeting on December 17. We need your support."
